

Ann was recommended to us, and from the beginning we understood that her circumstances were unique. She was moving from far away to be closer to her daughter and had bought a tired, neglected property just two doors down. The layout, especially downstairs, didn't meet her needs and required a complete rethink.

We were asked to deliver a full renovation with a kitchen extension and to reconfigure the ground floor to include a fully accessible bathroom. Accessibility and practicality were at the centre of every decision. Upstairs, we redesigned the layout to add a toilet to the large back guest bedroom so future visitors would have their own private space.

Outside, the driveway and exterior also needed updating to better suit Ann's lifestyle and give the home a more welcoming look. Working alongside our architect, we developed a thoughtful plan that Ann and her family were happy with — and the result was a stunning, functional renovation that perfectly supports her new chapter.
